3rd biggest water park in France

The water park O'Gliss Park, located in the French department of Vendée, opened its doors back in July 2016 and received, for its first season, 190 000 visitors.

In hopes of improving the management and experience of its visitors, O'Gliss Park equipped himself with PayinTech's payment solutions.

There are 4 different areas within the park and a dozen shops, restaurants, snacks, bars and photo booths, accessible to all visitors by the means of their waterproof cashless wristband.

A non constraining wristband

Equipped with an NFC waterproof wristband that can be topped up upon their arrival, vacationers can easily purchase at any restaurant, bar, snack, and shop without carrying their wallet, left in their locker.

Cashless waterproof wristband - fit for children

For any parent, the wristband is a great way to give their children pocket money. Indeed, as the money is secured in the wristband, kids can therefore purchase their snacks, drinks or pictures on site without needing cash and risk losing it. The cashless waterproof wristband is an innovation that guarantees unworried parents and gives more responsibility to children.

A tailor-made Photo module

The park's water slides are equipped with cameras along with detectors that photograph anyone taking the ride. If they wish to keep a souvenir, the many photo booths in the park enable them to select the pictures taken and purchase them with their PayinTech wristband. A copy of the picture can be sent via email while a paper format can be acquired when exiting the park.
